Appointed With Points For Pleasant Personality In The Purposes Of God

"For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee:

If any be blameless, the husband of one wife, having faithful children not accused of riot or unruly.

For a bishop must be blameless, as the steward of God; not self-willed, not soon angry, not given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre;

But a lover of hospitality, a lover of good men, sober, just, holy, temperate;

Holding fast the faithful word as he hath been taught, that he may be able by sound doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers."

For The Silver Lining

Amos Hartzler of our Rittman
Church

The wonderful and valuable gift, brought within reach of one and all who will accept it on the conditions He is offering it, is namely: Christ, the Son of the only true and living God, who suffered so intensely to prepare the way for us guilty ones, although He was the pure and innocent Lamb of God.

As we sing in a hymn, Count the many blessings; name them one by one, here in our country, we have special opportunities, under a government where we have freedom of worship, many of us have good, normal health, comfortable homes and many opportunities, for which we should be very thankful.

But many have sickness, poverty, and many other hardships to bear, and, at best, all that is in this world will soon pass away. We human beings are here upon earth for a short time. We have nothing good to expect after this earthly life is ended without a real preparation.

Therefore, God and our dear Saviour saw this lamentable condition, caused by that crafty and wicked enemy already in the Garden of Eden, persuading the first parents to disobey God's word and commandment.

So now we have the promise of a heavenly home, where people never get sick, nor die, where there will be nothing but joy, peace and rest, as we can read in Revelation, chapter 21.

So, dear children and adults, young and old, we should put forth every ef-

CONFESSION

A new, important need is now experienced by the soul—a need which is quite the opposite of what the soul previously desired.

The natural man, in darkness, is not very much concerned because he has sinned, but he does fear that he might be found out by his fellow men. Therefore, to keep his sins under cover of darkness is one of his chief concerns.

Now that the soul is enlightened, it is tortured by the consciousness of its guilt before its Maker, and has an actual desire, even a deep-felt need to make confession of its sins.

It is like the impurities of the body gathering into a large, painful boil. The pain becomes very severe, and the sufferer longs for the time when the boil becomes ripe, so that he may get rid of its impurities, and allow the healing process to begin.

So the soul in repentance has an increasing desire to open up and pour out a confession of its past sinfulness.

David experienced this, after he once forgot God and fell into a great sin, for which he afterward repented so contritely. His confession of repentance was made openly and written into a psalm of instruction and published, even printed into the Bible, where you and I may read it. It is recorded in the thirty-second Psalm, where he says: "When I kept silence, my bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long. For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me: my moisture is turned into the drought of summer. Selah. I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the LORD; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin."<sup>15</sup>

APOLOGIES

When a repentant person becomes convicted in his conscience of wrongdoing against another person, it is essential to confess, apologize, and where possible, make restitution to that person.

Sometimes this is not so easy, because it involves personal pride. In such cases, it is all the more necessary and wholesome that it be done. Not only is it very helpful and healing to the confessor, but it gives the very best kind of testimony to the wronged person of the change which the grace of God is accomplishing in the repenting person.

There have been cases where a person, to whom the apology is made by a repenting person, was so struck and impressed by the humble and penitent attitude, that it caused that person also to turn to repentance, and thereby became a direct means of saving a soul.

But there are sins which are against God and His law only, and involve no other person. In fact, all sins are primarily against God, and only secondarily against our fellow men. The truly repentant person will feel the need of confessing these also.

While such confessions are usually made to elders and ministers of the church, that is not absolutely essential. Such confession can be made to any mature, believing person in Christ, toward whom the confessor has a feeling of confidence that he or she will understand and sympathize, will know how to counsel the confessor, and will keep such confession confidential. Of course, such a confession is always to be made in sincerity and

The Shepherd And The Flock

Henry Souder Jr.

Colorful Christmas is the constant scene of the church.

This life is an evening . . . and at evening things usually wane . . . but the glow of peace and joy is beautiful and bright, even at evening.

One Christmas eve the children were happy and gay. It was a little hospital in Alaska, far away. The wind and the winter brought a picture of beautiful snow. The little Christmas tree, with its bright lights, had delighted the little hearts. The soft music was quietly playing "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing". Then the little ones were tucked in to peaceful sleep.

Some things cannot be measured in words, nor told in dollars. Beautiful gifts are experienced.

Room 18 was at the end of the hall. The young man was the burn case, and it was miracle hours that had kept him alive. He was swathed in bandage, his head and upper parts. It was cut through, but where he would have seen, there was only darkness.

That's why it was so beautiful to hear him that beautiful Christmas eve. At first, the three words were only mumbles. Then they are clear: "I see you"!

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: . . ."

The beauty of the good Shepherd's touch brings new spiritual sights and revelations.

He has planned it well. Through the night, we sight the light. And beyond compare is the glory and grace.

We have to look beyond the wrappings and bandages. We have to look beyond the suffering and waiting. His schedule, His care, His round-the-clock comfort is meant for what really counts.

"And David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep. . ."

In the jeweled clock-work of heavenly movement, the elders have been carefully placed for watchfulness. It is God's timing and untiring effort.

They are on duty.

The inspired word floods with light. The soft notes whisper of so peaceful an eve. The gentle restraining love holds in a way that guides in the path of the shining light . . . our faith beholds, and joy immeasurable floods our soul.

"Not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your joy: for by faith ye stand."

Obedience to heavenly counsel is the necessary lines and spaces for the beautiful melody of life.

We could not have the happy hope around God's fire-side, if we were out in blackness and sin.

God has placed His protective hand, and we call this touch "preaching", "warnings", "memorandum", "admonition". The Saviour's promise to keep His sheep is seen in active fulfillment.

"For a bishop must be blameless, as the steward of God . . . Holding fast the faithful word . . ."

Elder brother Theo Beer offered the first prayer of the evening at Camp Mack. Our youth were there. In Singing, they offered their selections under the great love-light of God.

After the last notes of the combined choir had faded . . . and the youth were again in their seats . . . our elder brother, George Yergler, spoke briefly and breathed a prayer.

The elders are doing a wonderful work, holding God's heritage. School-ed in the finest of educations, heav-enly wisdom and experience, they have yielded their souls as He would work. They have quietly sowed the seed, and have seen the demonstra-tion of the Spirit and power.

"Take heed therefore unto your-selves, and to all the flock . . ."

"Therefore watch".

It is a tragic error to wrench from the gentle hold of separation.

Doctrinal doubt can be as danger-ous as despised carnal sin.

A study was made of a certain large Protestant denomination in America. It certainly shows some of the briars and thorns into which could be wandered.

75% of the ministers denied the virgin birth.

That the Bible is the infallible word of God was rejected by 85%.

Those who denied the creation numbered 53%.

Our Lord's "Beware" should be in our ears constantly. His loving voice always speaks where there is danger for His own.

". . . the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

To see spiritual sights we must be carrying the cross. We would yield to Him, and keep our liberty from the wearisome and wicked ways of the world. We would, even though at first faintly . . . with perhaps dimly seeing forms and lights . . . see the glorious.

Yes, it's the eve of eternity. Softly sings the carol, in an even-tide of comfort. It's beautiful, this eve, with His hope . . . little children, with real light . . . and real joy . . . and real peace.

(Editor's note: In critical times, at crisis corners, we may gain a valuable secret in studying the following, sent, in substance, with Mrs. Weltz's news.)

The world is full of problems,
There's much to cause distress.
We may be bowed beneath the cares
That daily round us press.
There's one good, wise solution
'Tis simply stated thus,
"A little less of you or me,
A little more of us."

The rule of each one for himself
Should never then, be followed.
It brings no savor to the game;
Its victories are hollow.
But the other plan has never failed
To bring satisfaction, plus,
"A little less of you and me,
A little more of us."

A flake of snow is very small,
'Tis lost to sight quite quickly,
But many flakes combined, will fill
The roads and pathways thickly.
United we can face the fight
Without distress or fuss.
"A little less of you and me;
A little more of us."

"An Eastern Shepherd"

An Eastern Shepherd led his sheep
Toward a river's bank,
But when they saw the stream was broad,
Their hearts with fear did shrink;

And though the shepherd went across
In view of all the sheep,
They did not dare to follow him
And ford the waters deep.

And so he took a little lamb
Right from its mother's side:
He clasped it in his shelt'ring arm,
And with it crossed the tide.

The mother, missing what she loved,
Was eager now to gain
The distant shore, that she might find
Her precious lamb again.

She quickly made her way across,
And soon the stream she passed,
And other sheep soon followed her
Till all had crossed at last.

fort, guard against sin and every unclean and useless habit, as this world is so full of vanities. So many people waste their time so foolishly, and finally pass away, into eternal destruction.

We redeemed ones are not yet out of danger, as this our enemy has had thousands of years of experience, and he has so many snares and traps to bring us to a fall, if possible.

The very important question for all redeemed souls, Do we see and realize our own weakness, the many dangers around us, do we resist and reject everything that is displeasing to God, and are we willing to follow our Saviour on the straight and narrow way?

Or do we try to widen the way, follow the examples of such who are not so conscientious, smother our conscience? and follow the example of disobedient ones?

What a terrible thing if, when we come before the final Judge, we would be classed with those to whom He will say, I never knew you.

It is not sufficient that we have repented and been baptized, but it is to remain humble, faithful and obedient to the end of our days on earth. So let us fear, that we be not overpowered by the crafty enemy, and not forget, that we have all promised to heed, obey, and accept admonition, when it is brought to us.

The Lord has promised to conduct us safely to the blessed goal, but only if we keep our promises.

YE MUST BE BORN AGAIN

tial fruit of true repentance is evident uprightness.

That confession of sins is an essential in many places of the Scriptures. Even of John the Baptist it is written, the people "were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins."<sup>16</sup>

When the gospel of Jesus Christ was brought to the Ephesians and accepted by them, we also find that confession was the fruit of repentance. We read: "And many that believed came, and confessed, and shewed their deeds."<sup>17</sup>

When unrepentant people came to John the Baptist for baptism, he refused them, with these cutting words: "O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance"<sup>18</sup> Undoubtedly, an essential part of the fruit consistent with repentance, which John saw missing in these insincere candidates for baptism, was a readiness and willingness to confess their sins, as the others had done to whom John's baptism was administered.

That confession is an essential part of the cleansing of the heart, not only in the original cleansing during repentance, but also in after life, if a Christian should again through unwatchfulness commit sin, is shown by the following Scripture texts: "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed."<sup>19</sup> "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."<sup>20</sup>
